

Science Outreach – Athabasca presents... “The Scoop on Poop”

Speaker: Dean Morin, Field Inspector, Private Sewage Treatment Systems, Safety Services, Alberta Municipal Affairs

Date: Wednesday, January 19, 2011

Place: Athabasca University, Governing Council Chambers

Time: 7 P.M. to 8:30 P.M.

The presentation will focus on the science behind how onsite wastewater systems treat sewage on rural properties and how that science directs the development of the legislation that governs design and installation of such systems. Additionally, aspects of monitoring and maintenance of onsite systems will be discussed to better educate homeowners on the do's and don'ts of their system. The presenter will also share some of the interesting cases he has encountered as field inspector for the Province of Alberta and will share with you what you need to do in order to avoid a visit from him or his friendly colleagues. So, if you are interested in learning more about the septic system at your home and how it functions, please come attend this fun and informative session and get the latest "scoop on poop".
