

“Science Outreach – Athabasca presents... “Science, Humans and Action”

Speaker: Larissa Duma,
Intern with Canadian International
Development Agency (CIDA),
Environmental Sustainability, Tanzania
Date: November 29, 2011
Place: Athabasca University
Governing Council Chambers
Time: 7 PM to 8:30 PM

Admission is free. Refreshments will be available after this presentation.

Eight months of working in rural villages in Tanzania has opened Larissa’s eyes to how changes in environmental health can drastically affect people’s livelihoods. Her experiences have shown that environmental education can be an effective tool in engaging local communities in environmental health and could be the pathway to positive long term change. This presentation will highlight some of the challenges and successes she had while abroad and explore how linking more science into development practice can improve global environmental health. Join Science Outreach –Athabasca as we welcome Larissa Duma to Athabasca University. Larissa is a former graduate of Edwin Parr Composite High School and Simon Fraser.
